

PARLIAMENT
IS DISSOLVEDBy King George in Speech in Joint Session

IS VICTORY FOR LIBERALS

If the Voters Follow It Up with Abolition of the House of Lords' Veto Power, It Will Result in Social Revolution.

London, Nov. 28.—The British houses of parliament were to-day dissolved by King George.

The House of Lords and House of Commons met in joint session to hear the king's dissolution speech, which consisted of formal thanks and the announcement of the proroguing of parliament and the statement of the king's determination to call a general election of the House of Commons. Premier Asquith and the members of his cabinet were not present. This action was forced by the liberals, who are in power, to seek the abolition of the House of Lords' veto power. If they finally are successful, it will probably result in a social revolution in England, as they plan extensive and radical legislation.

THE BEST BATSMAN.

Sherwood Magee Stands Out Among National League Players.

New York, Nov. 28.—Sherwood Magee, the Philadelphia outfielder, with an average of .331, stands out as the best batsman of the National league during the past season in the official batting averages of the league for 1910, made public last night. Crandall of New York, and Goode of Boston, outrank Magee in actual averages, but they took part in fewer than fifty games each, so that the honors by general consent go to the Philadelphia, who played in 154 games.

Campbell of Pittsburgh follows Magee with an average of .326 and Hofman of Chicago is close behind with .325. Snodgrass of New York, with .321 and Wagner of Pittsburgh, the leader last season, with .320, are others in the company of heavy hitters.

Brockney is still charged of a technical charge of manslaughter. The case was investigated at the request of the public service commission. Judge Mower, held that no evidence had been produced to show how Williams came to be on the track on the night in question. Neither was it shown that the car was running at an excessive rate of speed.

As the Georgia does not make her trip to New York until Monday night, steam was not up. The difficulty was solved by pilot Frank Bunce, who cast off the forward hawsers, allowing the steamer to wind herself away from the dock, away from the flames. The dock fire itself was not extensive.

RIVAL SUITORS HAVE
DUEL WITH RAZORS

One of Men at Newton, Mass., Was Killed and the Other Was Placed Under Care of Doctors.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 28.—Rival suitors for a sweetheart in sunny Italy slashed and cut each other in a duel with razors in the Chestnut hill district of Newton Center at dusk last night and when the fray was ended Tony De Filippo, aged 22 years, was lying dead in the road and Giuseppe Dimio, aged 25 years, was being treated by a physician in a neighboring house to which he had fled. The two men with three companions, all Italians, were walking through the woods and roads of the wooded district, when, according to one of the men, De Filippo, made a remark about the Italian girl to which Dimio took offense. Both men drew razors and attacked each other, while their companions fled. De Filippo's body was found by a passing automobile party on Boylston street near Langley street and the police notified. At the same time, Dr. George West, who is also the medical examiner, had been called to the home of Arthur Muldoon to treat a man who had entered the house bleeding badly from wounds in the face and arms. Dr. West notified the police who came and placed Dimio under arrest. He was taken to the Newton hospital and is held, charged with the murder of his companion.

The girls, about whom the men are supposed to have fought, ran into a nearby saloon a few moments before the bodies were found. They asked where a policeman could be found but ran away without waiting for a reply.

IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

Mrs. Samuel C. Marshall of Portsmouth Took Corrosive Sublimite.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Samuel C. Marshall lies dangerously ill in Cottage hospital from the effect of a poisonous dose of corrosive sublimate. Mrs. Marshall swallowed fifteen grains of the poison, a sufficient dose to cause almost immediate death. Mrs. Frank Kiltie, in whose home the corrosive was taken, applied an emetic to Mrs. Marshall, which caused her to regurgitate. Her prompt action saved Mrs. Marshall from immediate action.

Dr. Herbert L. Taylor had Mrs. Marshall transferred from the Kiltie home on Hanover street to the hospital. He applied an antidote. Mrs. Marshall's condition is improved, but is still dangerous.

That Mrs. Marshall swallowed the poison through mistake, accepting it to be a headache powder, is the version told by Mrs. Kiltie. They were in Mrs. Marshall's room Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Kiltie says that her attention was first called by Mrs. Marshall's cry that she had taken the poison for the headache powder.

Mrs. Marshall was formerly Miss Ellen Martin. She is about 35 years old. Her husband is serving on the gunboat Eagle in southern waters.

DESPONDENCY THE CAUSE.

John Dugan, Aged 53, Hanged Himself at Unity, N. H.

Claremont, N. H., Nov. 28.—Shortly after noon yesterday John Dugan, aged 53, committed suicide by hanging at the county farm in Unity. He had been admitted at the institution only twelve days before at his own request.

He was in the habit of being alone, and it is supposed that he took his life in a fit of despondency, as it is said that he had announced that the grave was the only resort for one in his condition.

Shortly before noon he was seen going toward the upper corn barn by Commissioner Sanders, who was making an inspection of the farm. Not appearing when dinner was ready search was made and the body was found hanging in the corn barn by a rope used to tie up slaughtered cattle.

He had climbed up a ladder on the inside of the building, attached the rope and jumped off the ladder. Death was probably instantaneous, as Dugan's neck was broken.

STATE FOREST ENLARGED.

90 Acres More Land Bought in Plainfield, Adjoining Original Tract.

Negotiations have just been completed by State Forester Austin F. Hawes of Burlington for the purchase of two tracts of land of 45 acres each, south of Plainfield, which adjoins the state forest of 450 acres. The new purchase was owned by the Plainfield Methodist church, and added to what the state already possessed in that town, the forestry reserve is quite extensive.

Forester Hawes and his assistants have marked 60,000 feet of lumber to be cut from the tract to thin out the timber and give the young trees a chance to grow. The amount received from the sale of the timber will pay largely for the expense of planting seedlings of pine and spruce in the unwooded parts of the tract in the spring and the state forest will be a paying proposition.

It was only about a year ago that the land was bought and since then 10,000 Norway spruce seedlings have been set out and 25,000 four-year-old white pines, at a total cost for planting of $37.50, not including the purchase price of the seedlings, which was $3.50 per thousand for the Norway spruce, while the white pine seedlings were furnished from the nursery at Burlington. The larger part of the new tract of land is well timbered with spruce and fir and some hard wood, but some seedlings will be planted there after 40,000 more have been set out on the original land in the spring.

Burlington, Nov. 28.—Judge Mower in city court Saturday sentenced James E. Dolan of South Burlington to serve not less than one year and a half and not more than two years at the house of correction at Rutland. Dolan took an appeal and the court fixed bail at $1,000. Dolan was given a hearing on a charge of assault with intent to kill his wife during a family row the night before Thanksgiving. Judge Mower did not find the evidence sufficient to hold Dolan on this charge, but sentenced the man for breach of the peace. Mrs. Dolan claimed in her testimony that Dolan pointed a shotgun at her and told her to say her prayers. He denied this on the stand, claiming that he was loading the gun in order to have it ready for clucking turkeys.

SENSATIONAL SUIT BROUGHT

To Dissolve the Sugar Trust, "Ruthless" Monster

ACTION IN FEDERAL COURT

The Petition Filed To-day Says That the American Sugar Refinery Co. Crushes All Opposition It Cannot Control.

New York, Nov. 28.—The federal justice department to-day filed a petition in United States circuit court, demanding that it outlaw the sugar trust. The American Sugar Refining company was characterized in the petition as a "ruthless" monster, which crushed opposition that it couldn't control. The court is asked to dissolve the trust "by receiver or otherwise" and restore competition in sugar trade.

The petition is the most sensational that was ever filed. It alleges that the trust agreements are a monopoly and a fraud, and it declares that the Havemeyers and associates have arbitrarily fixed the price of sugar and have injured the public.

CERTIFIED CHECK FOR $200.

Its Tender for Fur Coat Makes a Disagreeable Situation.

On request of Deputy Sheriff H. J. Slattery, the Burlington officers to-day held Fred J. Long till a matter of a certified check for $200 on the Leominster, Mass. National bank could be straightened out. The check was presented by Long at Moore & Owens' store Saturday night in payment for a fur coat, and the customer was given $115 in change. Later the Leominster bank was communicated with, and the information came that no check of that sort had been certified there. The check was deposited in the People's National bank here.

On receipt of that information, Deputy Slattery was put on the trail of Long, who had gone away from the city, and within two hours the man was taken in Burlington. Deputy Slattery left at 3:05 this afternoon to bring the man back to Barre. He registered at the Van Ness house there, and since he had departed from the hotel it was thought that he had left the city. So other cities and towns were notified on the Rutland railroad, but later the information came from Burlington that the man was held there for the latter officer.

The certified check was signed by Joseph Long & Co., the firm which is changing the river bed, and Fred Long is son of the senior partner in the firm, and he has been engaged in the contract here for some months. Just what disposition of the matter will be made will not be determined till the return of the young man to-night.

BISHOP HALL IN BARRE.

Conducted Two Services at the Church of the Good Shepherd Yesterday.

The Rt. Rev. A. C. A. Hall, bishop of the diocese of Vermont, made his annual visitation to the Church of the Good Shepherd yesterday. On account of the illness of the rector, Rev. W. J. M. Beattie, the bishop conducted both the morning and evening services. At the morning service, special music was rendered by the vested choir. As yesterday was the first Sunday in Advent, which season marks the beginning of the Christian year in the church calendar, Bishop Hall delivered a sermon appropriate to that occasion. The auditorium of the church was well filled, and all listened closely to his scholarly discourse. In prefacing his address with a few remarks concerning the parish, the bishop expressed his keen disappointment that the rector could not be present at his visitation and united with the parishioners in praying for a speedy recovery.

Bishop Hall took for his text the words from the epistle to the Hebrews, 12th chapter, 28th verse, which reads as follows: "Let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear." Lack of careful examination of the phrase "godly fear," he said, has led to a wide difference of opinion as to what our Lord really meant when he used these words. Misinterpretation of the same phrase has kept many a man at arm's length from Christianity. He disapproved this faulty view and said that a slavish fear of God that he will take some awful revenge if they fail to comply with His wishes, by saying that the word "fear" in its scriptural sense conveyed the idea of reverence and loving respect, rather than that of a painful emotion excited by the expectation of evil. God is not searching character for flaws or scrutinizing men's faces for faults. There was a gentler doctrine in the mind of Jesus Christ when he repeated these words of the Master.

When we are in the presence of our moral or intellectual superiors, he said, we are naturally inclined to act in respect and with deference to their wishes. If the same token Christian men and women look upon the great wisdom and power of God with respect and reverence in a great degree. Fear of God is an expression of our love and regard for the omnipotent Being.

He compared God's power to a machine. Without the guiding power of man's hand, the engine, for example, might become a deadly force of destruction. The power of God is infinitely greater, but behind it all is His equally infinite wisdom, which asks not for fear in the heart of man. He brought his discourse to a close by calling attention to the growing evil of profanity. This practice, he said, increases nowadays with surprising rapidity. The tendency among the young to commit this needless sin was strongly deplored, and he urged that greater prayer be brought to bear upon those who have charge of the bringing up of young people.

Attendance at the evening service equalled, if not exceeded, that of the morning, many representatives from other religious bodies being among those present. The bishop chose his text from the third chapter of St. John's epistle, and drew a timely lesson from the passages contained therein. His address dealt largely with the three sacraments of the church and of their place in the life of the churchman. It is now expected that the bishop will pay another visit to the local parish, at which time the confirmation service will take place.

TRYING GIRL FOR MURDER

Hattie Le Placed on Trial at Cambridge

GOOD PROGRESS ON JURY

Public Was Excluded from Courtroom To-day, Owing to Place Being Crowded with Talesmen—Prosecution Prefers Farmers.

Boston, Nov. 28.—The trial of Hattie LeBlanc, the 17-year-old girl, who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, a Waltham laundryman, on November 20, 1909, began this morning in the criminal court at East Cambridge. One hundred and ninety-four talesmen were summoned. The public was not admitted during the morning session of the court. This was due to the fact that the entire space in the courtroom was required for the talesmen.

A great crowd on the outside was thus prevented from getting a view of the young prisoner. The girl had been brought across the street from the jail early in the forenoon. She sat outside the steel prisoner's cage between her father and the matron of the jail. The girl frequently conferred with her attorney, Melvin Johnson. Hattie was dressed in a blue gown and her hair was tied with red ribbons. She looked well, though pale. The indictment was soon read, and the work of selecting a jury was begun. Prosecution Higgins plainly showed at the outset that he preferred farmers. From the first forty talesmen they chose the following jurors, who are middle-aged men: Charles Perry, Stillman Parker, J. Robbins, James McGrath and Alex. Mariett.

The little French-Canadian girl is the youngest of her sex to be tried for first degree murder in the annals of New England courts. Her father came from West Arichat, C. B., to lend encouragement. The trial promises to be a protracted one.

Glover Accused Hattie.

Just before Clarence F. Glover died, the evening of Nov. 20, 1909, in a private hospital to which he had crawled after being shot in the back in the Waltham laundry of which he was the proprietor, he said Hattie LeBlanc, who was in the laundry with him at the time and who was a domestic in his family, had shot him.

Search was made for the girl, but she was not found until three days after when officers discovered her crouched under a bed in the Glover home and she was arrested.
